

Broke my heart

Elena Miranda Campisi

Burning down my throat
Blades of lies painting a thick coat
In my mind the memory left engraved
Like a name on a grave
Each twisted word you sent
Felt my heart shattering deep in my chest
My eyes leak pain in lost sense of believing
Falls to the floor in the idea of my fairytale failing
Disbelief and betrayal
The never ending life trial
I never could understand
The only truth i cannot bend
The messages replaying like an old film
Rose colored tint turns grim
How could the one i loved most
Turn my lively heart to a haunted ghost
My empty soul lost in the moment
Tied to the ground with no ability to control it
A year after the walls of my childlike sense of naivety fell Remembering it all too well
Each beat of my aching heart
My breathe shaking trying to stop it from falling apart
The visions of that night
Floods my eyes and wins the excuciting fight
Lost to the strikes you made me endure
Stripped me from the last thing that made me pure
Now i'm older
The winds feel colder
I may only be a teen
But you took away my ability
To ever love another person with purity
With everything that left me scarred
You're what broke my heart

